Ocean freight: software as a driving force

Streamline every shipment from terminal to terminal and from door to door.

As a freight forwarder, you know better than anyone else that different requirements are set for each shipment. And despite the fact that domestic and foreign procedures are universal, getting goods across the border smoothly and without having to pay too many import duties, often turns out to be a challenge. Are you wasting time on registering the required data? Do your customers demand to be kept up-to-date continuously on which cargo arrives, in which containers and possible delays? Are you missing the overview of your costs and revenues?

You might think that your competitors' software solutions are out of your reach. But modern technology does not have to be expensive. Your company too can have the latest technological possibilities and innovations – without the accompanying costs. This allows you to anticipate on market demands more quickly and to strengthen your competitive position.

Stay in control with a powerful, user-friendly solution

With Boltrics' ocean freight forwarding software, you can manage the entire ocean freight route. from terminal to terminal and from door to door. Enter data only once and the system makes sure that work processes run smoothly and fast. Saving you time and providing you better insight. Once you have entered the data, you have direct access to the required documents.

- Value statement
- CMRs, transport orders and confirmations

Cross-docking & scanning
Instantly convert incoming goods into outgoing goods and immediately place them at the right cross-dock location.

"Nowadays, many logistics service providers still do not always share sufficient information. This is an important reason for the growing demand for information among shippers. You do not want to serve them a black box. If something goes wrong, you need to react instantly. A proactive attitude is desirable, including data sharing."

Brennus van der Klaauw, Managing Director at VCK Logistics

Freight Forwarding: handling all the way

Boltrics' Forwarding software is a complete software solution for handling air freight, ocean freight, warehousing, road transport and customs activities.
